

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I met Tony ANTHONY for the first and only time in 2010, when he visited the French island of Martinique, on the invitation of the Evangelical Alliance of Martinique. I had the privilege of interviewing him on Radio Evangile Martinique, the Christian radio station of the four main denominations on this island.

I discovered an evangelist who is really zealous to share the Gospel in many different and creative ways. He answered my questions in a candid way. My personal impression of Tony was that of a man of integrity who has one desire: winning the lost for Jesus.

I also attended one of his evangelistic meetings, during which he endeavored to share the Good News with the help of both his testimony and modern technical means, with one purpose: transmitting the Gospel in such a way that would make it both easy to understand and create a desire in the hearts of sinners to receive Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour.

I did not find anything negative or reproachful in Tony ANTHONY.
